

TWO AMERICANS ARE KILLED IN MASSACRE

REPORT RECEIVED AT STATE DEPARTMENT THAT UNITED STATES CITIZENS WERE DELIBERATELY MURDERED.

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

Nicaraguan Royal Troops Massacred by Rebel Forces As First Report—Cruiser California Rushed to Scene.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 22.—Two Americans are reported to have been deliberately murdered in the massacre of the Nicaraguan royal troops by the rebels at Leon on Aug. 19. One was said to be Harvey Dodd of Kosciusko, Miss. The other man is named Phillips. The two men had been wounded and were seeking refuge in a hospital, according to the report received today at the state department.

Dodd and Phillips were said to have been fighting with the government troops. In the defeat they were taken to a hospital badly wounded, where they were killed in the massacre which followed. No more details were sent to Washington.

The killing of Dodd and Phillips, though entirely unparalleled, recalls the killing of Cannon and Groce by Zelaya in 1909, which resulted in an upheaval which threw the dictator out of office and sent him to European exile. The state department is pressing for more information.

A delayed dispatch from Corinto today says the rebels are taking towns between Leon and Chinandega. They are reported to have confiscated a large plantation and a distillery containing five million dollars worth of alcohol. The arrival of additional United States forces in Nicaragua is expected and Rear Admiral Sutherland, on the cruiser, California, will take full command.

The massacre of the royal Nicaraguan troops sent to defend the town of Leon is fully confirmed in a belated cablegram received today from the American legation at Managua, dated Aug. 19.

The affair was even more disastrous to the government forces than originally reported. The rebels refused quarter and annihilated the whole force of defenders with the exception of three or four soldiers who made their escape by putting on the uniforms of the rebels.

Today's early advices to the state department are that the situation is critical. Though the American marines and bluejackets are holding Managua against the would-be looters and pillagers great danger is threatening Corinto on the west coast. Women and children of the rebel families in the town are sleeping aboard the two United States warships there.

At Chinandega the situation is reported improved. The government has been able to re-open communication with that point which is on the railroad connecting Managua with Corinto.

Senator Bacon again attacked the landing of the United States forces in Nicaragua in a speech in the senate today during consideration of the new legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill. Senator Hearburn commenting in the provision which appropriated for the commerce court until only March 4, suggested it was "an indication of great confidence on the part of one of the great political parties as to success in November."

"That confidence seems to me to be well founded," said Senator Bacon. "If in the meantime we do not get up a war with some other country to divert attention from the real issue, I think that prediction will come true." Senator Bacon urged consideration of his resolution for an investigation of the Nicaraguan situation.

"The gravity of this situation may make necessary investigation at the other end of the capital," he said. "What is to happen if officers of the government are allowed to disregard the laws?"

From Boston Yard. Boston, Aug. 22.—Orders to forward 100 marines to Nicaragua were received at the navy yards today. It was announced the detachment would leave for New York tomorrow.

UNDERWOOD REVIEWS TARIFF SITUATION

Democratic Leader Would Prove in Graphic Manner Oppression of Present Day Working Tax.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 22.—Majority leader Oscar W. Underwood reviewing the achievements of the democratic house in the congressional record today sets forth as he sees it the situation before American consumers under the present tariff system in this fashion:

"Under the present oppressive tariff law the laboring man returns at night from his toil clad in a woollen suit taxed 75 per cent, shoes taxed 12 per cent, stockings and underwear 71 per cent, a cotton shirt taxed 50 per cent, a wool hat and woollen gloves taxed 78 per cent. He carries a dinner pail taxed 45 per cent and greets his wife as she looks through a window pane taxed at 52 per cent with a curtain taxed 42 per cent.

After scrapping his shoes on an iron taxed 75 per cent, he wipes them on a taxed 50 per cent. He lifts the door latch taxed 45 per cent, steps on a carpet taxed 62 per cent, and kisses his wife, clad in a woollen dress taxed 75 per cent. She is mending an umbrella taxed 50 per cent with thread taxed 30 per cent."

Various citations were included showing the tax on different other commodities concluding with the statement that monuments for the brave are taxed 50 per cent.

The general deficiency appropriation bill, usually the last of the annual bills, was reported to the senate today by the appropriations committee with approximately five million dollars in claims and other provisions added to the bill as the house passed it, making a total of $11,513,871. Among the items added by the senate committee was one of $66,000 to repay contributors to the ransom fund for Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, captured in 1901 by Bulgarian brigands.

President Taft today appointed a committee of government officials to investigate the United States general appraisers to ascertain if there has been "neglect of duty, malfeasance in office or inefficiency" on the part of any of the board's members. The board has headquarters in New York.

Under virtual statement from Pres. Taft that he would again veto the army appropriation bill if it contained any "riders" affecting the executive or legislative departments, chief of staff, the house and senate conferees today struck from the bill a contemplated provision to that effect and presented a report free from the features upon which the president based his first veto.

Provisions for a parcels post system in this year's postal appropriation bill was agreed upon today by conferees at the house and senate. The plan accepted is a modification of the Bourne senate bill. The senate amendment to increase second class mail rates was eliminated.

"Congress will adjourn by Saturday night," predicted speaker Clark today and Representative Underwood agreed with him. The postoffice bill, the sundry civil and the general deficiency bills, whose passage is almost perfunctory are the only outstanding measures.

WHITMAN READY TO GIVE EVIDENCE FOR GRAFT PUNISHMENT

Will Take Matters Up at Once and Press Issue of Cases—Offenders Under Arrest Taken Into Court.

New York, Aug. 22.—While the forces of District Attorney Whitman with the aid of a squad of private detectives were directed today to ferret out evidence of police graft when Justice Caff convened the extraordinary session of the Grand jury on Sept. 3rd, District Attorney Whitman proposes to lay information of police blackmail. With the filing of this information the scores of subpoenas will be issued for witnesses John Doe witnesses to appear in court and tell the truth or go to prison. With the formality of the argument today five of those indicted with the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, concluded, the district attorney proposes to direct his entire attention for the next week or so hunting out evidence for use in the John Doe inquiry. District Attorney Whitman's information that he will lay publicly before Justice Caff for no less than four police inspectors and three civilians who it is said are involved in police corruption.

Police Lieut. Charles Becker and four of his alleged underworld accomplices were arraigned before Judge Mulready in the court of general sessions today to plead to an indictment charging him with the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal.

Counsel for Becker said he was not ready to plead today and the court set Tuesday next for the pleading. The other four prisoners all pleaded not guilty with permission to withdraw or change the plea to guilty by Tuesday next.

District Attorney Whitman gave out information this afternoon that he had discovered six more bank accounts of Lieutenant Becker showing deposits of about $12,500. The prosecutor now has located sums of money aggregating $125,000 on deposit in several banks by the accused police officer. Magistrate Joseph Corrigan has volunteered to turn over to the aldermanic investigating committee all the information he has obtained regarding police corruption.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Zelig issued a statement this afternoon exonerating Lieutenant Becker of any blame for the "frame-up." Instead he accused "Bald Jack" Rose, who has turned state's evidence against Becker, as being responsible for the job. He and Rose are old enemies.

A sealed indictment charging perjury was handed down by the grand jury today against Charles Steinert and James White, former members of Lieut. Becker's "strung arm" guard. They are charged with "framing a gun carrying case against the gang leader 'Big Jack' Zelig."

The resolution is as follows: "Resolved that we demand of the governor to remove from office the present insurance commissioner and unless said commissioner is removed this assembly and every member thereof will use all honorable means to cause his defeat at the coming election. The resolution also calls for polling of the candidates for the state senate and to determine how they stand on the repeal of the fraternal legislation movement enacted under the resume of Commissioner Ekern. Charges are also made in the resolution that Modern Woodmen camps under the direction of higher officials are suppressing literature opposing the new rate and communications from organizations formed to contest them. The Assembly also states it will control 25,000 votes.

HAD A FORTUNATE ESCAPE WHEN CAR TURNED TURTLE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Marinette, Aug. 22.—While demonstrating a touring car last night A. A. Schmidt of Milwaukee lost control of the machine and it turned turtle in a ditch on a dangerous curve 6 miles from Marinette on the Presargo road, pinning Schmidt and the 4 girls who were in the car, under the machine. The fact that the top of the auto held up the heavy part of the machine probably saved the lives of its occupants.

The girls in the car were Misses Sarah Brink, Elfreda Thompson both of Minnemonie and Ada and Violet French, Marinette, daughters of John French, democratic candidate for sheriff.

Years Ago

People depended upon a public bulletin board upon which they posted all notices and information that they wished to reach the public. People used this method not because they wished, but because they had nothing better. But the fact remains that they used the best they had. The Gazette offers its want columns, that reach nearly every home in the city as a medium to reach help, roomers, boarders, for sale, etc. Are you using it or are you still back in the age of the window placard and the fence post notice?

HEALTH CERTIFICATE IN ORDER TO MARRY

State Board of Health Will Urge Measure at Next Session of the Legislature.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 22.—A bill for the physical examination of brides and grooms before marriage, offered in the 1911 legislature of Wisconsin by Senator George E. Hoyt, a physician, and never reported out of committee, will be reintroduced in the 1912 session. The measure was fostered by the state board of health, which will assume a like responsibility next winter. Less than a year after this bill had been smothered, Dean Walter T. Sumner of Chicago gained widespread attention by announcing his determination not to marry couples in the future who do not come provided with health certificates given after examination by competent physicians. Fortified with this example, the state board of health will press the new bill for passage.

The last legislature having passed a large number of health bills, it is predicted that this class of legislation will not be so voluminous in the coming session. The state board of health will bring vigorous support, however, to measures looking to the prevention of pollution of water supplies. This program will emphasize the necessity of drawing water supplies from bodies of water into which sewage does not flow. At present certain cities in the Fox river valley are emptying sewage into Lake Winnebago from which their water supplies are received. Similar situations exist in other parts of the state, and the state board predicts a terrible epidemic some day unless something is done to prevent it.

It is probable, in view of the fact that powerful opposition was able to defeat medical inspection in the schools in the last three sessions, that the state board will not father a similar bill next year, leaving it to individual members. The board plans, however, to prepare a pamphlet for teachers setting forth ways of instructing the youth in such subjects as sanitation, personal cleanliness, care of the eyes, adenoids, etc.

COLONEL IS READY TO ANSWER PENROSE

"I Never Hit if I Can Help It, But I Hit Hard," Says Colonel to Penrose Charges.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Wilkes Barre, Pa., August 2.—"I hit hard; I never hit if I can help it, but I never hit softly," said Colonel Roosevelt today, referring to his reply last night to Senator Penrose in the Senate at this time, taking the ground that he had disposed of the matter in so far as it affected him. He had come to Wilkes Barre prepared for the Senator's statement having brought with him a bundle of letters and documents which he had collected about his departure in expectation that Mr. Penrose would attack him.

Rev. Father Curran, Colonel Roosevelt's host, had planned a busy day for the Colonel who was up early for breakfast at the rectory at the Holy Xaviour church. First on the program called for his attendance at High Mass at the Holy Xaviour church. On returning from the church Colonel Roosevelt was to make an address from the porch of the rectory after which he was to go to Harvey's lake about fifteen miles from this city to dinner. Colonel Roosevelt promised to look in at a ball game on returning from the lake. Next a parade through the city with an escort of cadets and mine workers to the armory, where this evening Colonel Roosevelt is to deliver the principal address.

His address is to deal with morals rather than with political questions. The Colonel will leave for New York late tonight. Col. Roosevelt paid a warm tribute to Father Curran in an address from the porch of the rectory. "He has been a servant and a champion of the poor and oppressed," he said.

SENATE COMMITTEE IS ASKED TO PROBE PENROSE'S CHARGES

Senator Asks That Investigation Be Made and That Witnesses Including Roosevelt Be Called.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 22.—Senator Penrose today asked the senate to direct the Clapp committee, investigating campaign contributions of 1904 and 1908, to investigate the charges contained in his sensational speech of yesterday in connection with the Penrose-Archbold correspondence. He asked that the committee be directed to call as witnesses "all persons mentioned" in his speech. Colonel Roosevelt was one of them. The motion was temporarily laid over.

Scouting new wraths of campaign contributions as a result of Senator Penrose's sensational speech of yesterday, the senate committee inquiring into the political funds of 1904 and 1908 is planning to renew hearings at once. Senator Clapp, chairman of the committee, and Senator Dillingham were in conference today. Senator Clapp confessed some reluctance to go on without the presence of democratic senators. The two democratic members, Senator Lea and Senator Painter, both are away, and had not expected to return to Washington until late next fall.

Telegrams were sent to the two democrats asking them to return at once or have Senator Dillingham designate someone to sit for them on the committee. It is possible the committee of five may be increased.

Talk of the committee calling Colonel Roosevelt was again heard at the capitol today. The Clapp committee has not considered calling the senator, however.

"He will have an opportunity to tell what he knows," said Senator Penrose after reading Colonel Roosevelt's statement, that the telegrams made it unnecessary to appear before the senate campaign fund committee. "I intend to amend my motion made this morning so that the committee will be directed to subpoena the men mentioned in my statement. I do not intend to have it as a mere matter of invitation," added the senator.

A Little Talk on Vaudeville and Feature Films

The average performer in vaudeville in a city like Janesville receives about $5 per day for his work. Out of this he must pay railroad fare, hotel bills and minor items that reduce his net income to half the amount. What kind of performers can you expect to work at this price? Do you wonder that half of them are disappointing? Yet experience has shown that the business will not warrant higher salaries, or managers would be glad to pay more and get better acts. On the other hand there has been such an increase in the production of feature films like the "101" Bison, "Cinderella," "Zigomar," "Joss," etc., that the time is here when a manager can, without increasing his expense, substitute film productions that are really great for vaudeville acts that are generally more or less disappointing often. For fifteen or twenty dollars a night he can either hire an ordinary vaudeville bill, or he can rent a set of films that cost a fortune to produce. "Which shall he do?" is the question. "What do most people want?" and can be definitely answered only by trial.

Therefore to find whether the public prefers it to vaudeville, this newest development in entertainment will be tried at the Royal Theatre. For four weeks, beginning Friday, August 30, remember

CARP FISHING WILL BE STARTED SHORTLY

Residents Around Lake Koshkonong Surprised To Learn That State Has Let Fishing Contract.

While the state law relative to carp fishing at Lake Koshkonong does not go into effect until April 1913, it has been supposed that no license to seine the lake for carp would be granted by the state. It is learned, however, that the state has let two contracts, with two firms giving them permission to seine for carp, the agreement it is understood being on a division of the net profits. The state will receive forty per cent of the net profits and the fishermen sixty. At these figures it will be a profitable contract for the state although they have to furnish the same warden and pay is salary. Hunters who had hoped the lake would not be visited by fishermen this year will be much surprised and disturbed to learn their fall shooting will be spoiled. The fishing will begin within a few weeks it is reported.

Heart to Heart Talks.

CHILD SLAVERY.

Alma Whaley of Chattanooga, Tenn., drank one and one-half drams of carbolic acid in an attempt to end her life, but was saved by the physicians.

Why a suicide at fourteen? The girl revealed the fact that she with several of her fellow workers in a factory had entered into a suicide pact, preferring to die rather than work in the mills.

Listen to the child: "We all wanted to die at our 'frame.' We go to work at 6 in the morning and work until 6 at night. We have no time to play. Little Bertha cries and says she would rather be dead than alive. So we made up our minds we would die."

What a tragedy of childhood! Without the power of self analysis these children did not fully realize perhaps that under the depressing and monotonous labors of the mill both their bodies and brains were being stunted, but they did realize they were miserable.

They did realize they were being cheated of their birthright—the right of self development, the right to education, to recreation, to play. They did realize that because of the long and grinding hours of labor in the insupportable factory with its nerve racking noises they were losing the best years of their lives.

Their parents? It is sorrowful to record that in many cases of this character the parents are to blame, dividing with the greedy mill operators the responsibility for conditions as they are.

"But," say certain legislators—"I worked on the farm as a child when I had to reach up for the plow handles. It is good for children that they should work."

Yes, but working in the open air and sunlight is one thing; working in the dust and grime of a stifling mill atmosphere is quite another.

We are proud of the fact that we are a working people.

Nearly all our great men as boys were poor and worked hard.

But none of them worked under the conditions of our modern child slaves—in a stifling factory, or at opening the gates of the dark mine, or standing over the "breakers," labors that change boys and girls prematurely into old men and women, ground by sordid greed into human waste.

There is more than one sort of white slavery.

Alma Whaley preached a powerful sermon against child labor when she told how these miserable preferred death.

"THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS"

At Myers Theatre, Sunday, Aug. 26, Mat. and evening.

The success of Harold Bell Wright's novel, "The Shepherd of The Hills," made into a play by its author in collaboration with Elsbeth W. Reynolds, is proving just as big a hit on the stage as in book form. It does in the book stores.

The story of the play is based on a somewhat dramatic plot of mystery. An unknown comes into the Ozark mountains and because of his clerical bearing and readiness to officiate for the regular pastor of the mountainers, a portion of his disguise is penetrated. The mountainers who live so much to themselves are willing to let the man live the life of a partial recluse. He makes friends with one family and takes care of the place of shepherd. In this guise he attempts to expiate the wrong doing of his son who several years previously had come into the mountains and wronged one of the young women. Her father has vowed deadly vengeance on the betrayer of his daughter, but he has disappeared leaving no traces of his whereabouts. It is generally supposed he is dead. The good shepherd wins the love and respect of the mountainers, though at one time his life is endangered by a lawless band of mountaineers who suspect he is a revenue officer.

There are many dramatic episodes in the play, but its strength lies in the unfolding and development of its characters. "The Shepherd" is a most impressive figure, mentally and physically. The young woman who is the heroine of the story is unimpaired by the conventions of the town and has good red blood in her veins. With the aid of the shepherd she polishes her mind so that she becomes a young woman of culture and refinement. Then there is the young mountaineer whose love is honest and sincere and who down the champion bully and strong man of the mountains in a marvelous contest of strength and endurance. Then there is the uncanny youth who wanders like a will-o'-the-wisp across the mountains and is the means of finally bringing happiness to the shepherd and restoring the good name of the mountaineer's family.

There is much "atmosphere" of the hills pervading the play. And in making the production, Messrs. Gaskill and MacVitty, the producers, it is said, have supplied some beautiful and realistic stage pictures.

SPEECH BY WHITTET AT GERMAN PICNIC

Candidate For State Senator Makes Strong Plea Against Income Tax Law At Gathering Yesterday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Edgerton, Aug. 22.—The German Lutheran church congregation had their luncheon yesterday, being their annual picnic and outing which was held in Schoonmaker's grove one mile south of the city. Mr. Whittet in his address dwelt largely upon the absurdity of the present income tax, holding the subject in a masterly manner which was intensely interesting to the large audience of taxpayers present.

Following the address a game of baseball between the business men and the Union Club took place which was quite exciting and interesting as well, the same resulting in favor of the Union Club by a score of 12 to 0.

The Edgerton concert band furnished music throughout the day. In point of attendance, attraction and sociability, the event proved a complete success.

Mahomet and the Mountain.

"Mahomet made the people believe that he would call a hill to him and from the top of it offer up his prayers for the observance of his law. The people assembled; Mahomet called the hill to come to him, again and again; and when the hill stood still he was never a whit abashed, but said: "If the hill will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the hill."—Bacon's Essay "Of Boldness."

WHO WAS "OOR RAB" OR "CHET"

New Work on Nicknames of Famous Men Will Inform You of Most Names.

The most nicknamed person who has ever lived is one Theodore Roosevelt according to the work on nicknames just written by Dr. Harry Thurston Peck, until recently professor of English at Columbia University and a historian of note.

"Oor Rab" was one of the names applied to Robert Burns. "Chet" was the name given to Chester A. Arthur. A. J. Balfour has been known as "Miss Alice." General E. E. Butler among other names enjoyed that of "Old Spoons." Joe Chamberlain has long been called "Pushful Joe." Randolph Churchill as "Our Randy." Richard Croker as "Shifty Dick." Oliver Cromwell was called "Old Moll." Benjamin Disraeli "Dizzy." Lord Palmerston was dubbed "Old Pansy." There are hosts of other names such as "Silly Billy," "Natty Nat" and "Tiny Tim."

Do you know whose nicknames these are? If you don't you really ought to. Dr. Peck's glossary of nicknames includes those of states as well as famous men and is but one of the many striking features of the New Websterian 1912 Dictionary, Illustrated, which he has just edited and which The Gazette is giving away for six coupons and a small expense bonus.

This Dictionary is NOT published by the original publishers of Webster's Dictionary or by their successors. There's a Kink In Your Spine If Your Health Is Not Good

CHIROPRACTIC WILL REMOVE THE KINK AND NATURE WILL MAKE YOU WELL. HUNDREDS OF SUFFERERS TESTIFY TO THE EFFICACY OF THE LOCAL CHIROPRACTOR.

The slightest obstruction on the nerves leaving the spine will in time cause disease, unnatural growths, decay and ultimately death. Aren't you at all afraid of such trouble coming to you? Nature sends out plenty of warning but daily you neglect to notice her warning. One day the crash will come. There are days when you are out of sorts, don't feel just right. That's Nature's warning. Heed it. See the Chiropractor at once. Have the basic cause of your trouble, which is in the nerves leading from the spine removed. Nature will restore you.

The spinal nerve openings are well filled with nerves, vessels and tissue; so that a very slight slippage may bring pressure on a nerve and cause disease in that part of the body supplied by it. The Chiropractic adjustment, by relieving nerve pressure, cause action of these nerves, supplies new life force to the weakened ligaments and muscles; displaced organs resume their natural position; inflammation subsides; abnormal tissue growths are removed without the use of the knife.

To Whom It May Concern: I have been a sufferer with stomach trouble for many years. Since taking a course of Chiropractic adjustments have been entirely rid of the stomach disorders for which I had up to the time I called upon the Chiropractor found little or no relief. Name on request.

Portnap Shots

According to the Chicago Cubs, Frank Shulte of that club breaks an average of 50 bats per season. The Cub star uses bats that have the smallest handle of any that are produced. The club is of second growth ash, and weighs forty ounces. Scores of other major and minor leaguers who have asked to inspect the Shulte model while ordering bats, have invariably put the home run stick aside, likening it to a "switch."

Of the warriors who battled in the world's series of 1903 between Boston and Pittsburgh, only three remain in fast company. These are Fred Clarke, Hans Wagner and Tommy Leach, all of whom played with the Pirates. These men will soon quit the big leagues. They are getting old.

Jean Dubuc has the best record this season of the Detroit pitchers. He has a record of .750, which means two games won out of every three pitched. He is considered the star young hurler of the American league.

Forty entries have been received for the Kentucky endurance stakes, to be run at Louisville at the opening of the fall racing meeting at Churchill Downs, Oct. 7. Among the horses is Eugene Lutz's Messenger Boy, winner of last year in 7:14 1-2, the fastest four miles of record in a race. The endurance stake, the second renewal of which is to be run this fall, possesses a cash value of $15,000, and in addition there is a gold cup valued at $1,000 for the winner, as the gift of the Kentucky state racing commission.

"Joe Jeannette is a tough fighting proposition. I'm not afraid to face him in a ring, but I would much rather fight Sam Langford or Sam McVey."

That's what Jack Johnson has to say concerning Jeannette's fighting ability. He thinks his dark rival is the best fighter in the world besides himself. "He's the hardest fighter in this country, or any other country, to defeat," says Jack. "If you knock down most fighters you have them practically whipped. Not so with Jeannette. You can knock him down time and again and he keeps coming up for more. That's why I say I'd rather face Langford or McVey than Jeannette."

Rube Marquard, of the New York Giants, and Joe Wood, of the Boston Red Sox are old rivals on the diamond. A few years back when Marquard pitched for the Indianapolis team of the American Association, Wood was twirling for the Kansas City team in the same league. In those days it meant a stiff pitcher's battle when the two teams met, with Marquard generally carrying off the honors. This year the two old rivals are likely to meet again, in the world series. If they do, Wood is likely to shine the brightest this time, as his record this season has been the best in organized baseball.

SCHEDULE FAST RACES FOR THE STATE FAIR

Light Harness Events Will Be Greatest in History of Wisconsin Exposition, Says Arthur Prohn.

"The race track attractions at the state fair this year will be the greatest in the history of the Wisconsin exposition," said Arthur W. Prohn, superintendent of speed, while in the city Sunday.

"Every condition is better than ever before. There is a much greater variety to the track program. Besides the regular horse races are the special speed attractions such as W. M. Savage's team, Minor High and George Gano, starting under a heavy guarantee to break the world's team record; the four mile relay races and several other speed features by women riders, and what is of equal importance, the big motorcycle race scheduled."

"We are now closing the latest entries for the regular races and we already know that every event will be filled, a condition that has not prevailed for several years. There are fifteen regular race events and excellent races are assured now for each. The entire $20,000 appropriation for purses will be used."

"A large number of our horses have been doing exceptionally well this season on the Grand Circuit and elsewhere. Notable among these are Braden Direct, the champion 4-year old pacer; Sunny Jim, Don, Pearl Patch, Princess Patch, Henry W., Ginger, Gold Seal and Celestine.

"Enthusiasm for the Wisconsin state fair races is rife throughout the entire middle west this year. The track has a good name and horsemen appreciate the reputation of having their animals well placed here."

"There is a bright future in store for horse racing at the state fair. During the past half dozen years many fast horses have been raised right here in this state, and all the farmers interested have their eyes on the state fair races."

CARRIGAN DOING WELL BEHIND BAT.

The name of Bill Carrigan hasn't figured quite so frequently in the public prints this season as have those of some other Boston Red Sox, notably Tris Speaker, Joe Wood, Jake Stahl, Gardner and Hall. However, it must not be inferred from this that Carrigan is a callow kid in baseball. He is doing some very good work behind the bat, and it is as a catcher rather than as a batter that he is earning his salary. His batting average is .245. Carrigan came from Holy Cross, where he was picked up by one of Taylor's scouts, and was developed at Toronto by Joe Kelley.

AMERICAN BOXER IS RELEASED BY COURT

"Kid" McCoy Discharged From Extradition Court Where He Was Held On Belgian Complaint.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Aug. 22.—"Kid" McCoy, (Norman Selby), the American boxer, was discharged from custody by the magistrates of the extradition court at Bow street today. He was arrested July 26 on a provisional extradition warrant charging him with larceny, alleged to have been committed at Ostend. The proceedings were taken at the instigation of the Belgian legation.

McCoy's attorney in addressing the court, says the depositions, had arrived from Belgium and after carefully studying them he considered there was absolutely no case against McCoy. It was most extraordinary that McCoy should have been arrested on the unsworn statement of an intoxicated woman who when she became sober, denied her own statement, says the attorney. The magistrate said he has read all the papers and had come to the conclusion that there was not sufficient evidence to justify extradition and he therefore dismissed the case.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
For the excavation of two drainage ditches.
Sealed bids will be received by the commissioners of the Stokes Drainage District at the Township of Avon, Rock County, Wis., at the office of Burr Sprague, Attorney, Brodhead, Wis., up to Saturday, August 10, 1912, for the excavation of the two drainage ditches of said district. The work consists of the excavation of about 25,000 cu. yds. of earth. The main ditch is 15,147 ft. long, with a six ft. bottom to 12 ft. side slopes about five ft. deep with 4 ft. berm, yd. inch 38,000. There is one highway to cross.
All the ditch is a hay meadow. The soil is two feet of muck, underlain by sand. The related ditch is 1170 ft. long, 4 ft. bottom with 12 ft. side slopes and about five ft. deep. There is one highway to cross, yd. inch 17,000. Soil is the same as the main ditch except that at the lower end for a few hundred ft. the ground is marshy and there are trees to clear from the right of way, near the lower end.
The work is unusually best suited for a dry land machine. The lower ends of the two ditches are 1/2 mile apart. Beloit, Wis., Brodhead, Wis. or Durand, Ill. are convenient shipping points.
The work is about ten miles from each point. Plans and specifications can be seen at the Farmers & Merchants Bank, Orfordville, Wis., at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, Janesville, Wis., at the office of Burr Sprague, Brodhead, Wis., and at the office of R. S. Owen, Engineer, Madison, Wis. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $2000 to insure the prompt execution of a contract and approved bond for $10,000 to insure the completion of the work. All bids to be at so much per cu. yd. Estimates the first of each month, 85% of estimate paid by the 15th, balance within ten days after the contract has been completed and right is reserved to reject any and all bids. There are other ditches to be dug in this locality later.
General specifications for Stokes Drainage District. These are to be identical with the general specifications for the Fosh Drainage District No. 1 as given by E. H. Jones synopsis of Wisconsin Drainage Laws as given on pages 17 and 18 with the following changes:
Stones: All sections will be cut and staked by the Engineer and in all cases unless otherwise ordered conformed to a 1 1/2 to 1 slope.
Berms: Will not be less than four ft. wide between edge of ditch and foot of slope of waste bank.
Grubbing: All grubbing or clearing of stumps, trees or brush shall be done by the contractor and shall be included in his bid for construction, and the lower so grubbed and cleared may be used for cribbing by contractor, but will remain the property of the owner of the land and must be left in place.
Quicksand: Omit.
Bridges: The bridge on the Fielstad ditch will be removed and replaced at no expense to the contractor, said contractor to exercise great care not to disturb the foundation of said bridge.
Quality of Filling: Manner of Laying: Omit 2nd paragraph regarding the construction of a catch basin on the south side of Lincoln Road.
The form of contract as given on page 19 of the synopsis of Wisconsin Drainage Laws is recommended.

LAW AND ORDER.

Suppression of the epidemic of defiance of the law should receive endorsement of citizens generally rather than condemnation of a few who voice but a small proportion of the city's population. Upon the police department rests the responsibility for preserving order and enforcing the laws of the city and state. If, in the pursuit of their duty, they are forced to use violence to drag an unruly citizen to the police station, if they are compelled to call upon citizens to aid them they should receive the support of law-abiding people rather than their condemnation.

Last evening two officers arrested a well known character on a down town corner shortly after six. The man resisted arrest for an alleged offense, most serious, and one which if proven, means a long term in the state's prison for the offender, and were forced to resort to unusual methods to compel him to obey their orders. The prisoner is a man who has long defied arrest by the officers, whose past record is such that due diligence should have been used in attempting to take him into custody. The officers used it and in wielding their sticks to compel obedience were roundly reproached, insulted, jeered and condemned by citizens who assembled, some of whom would doubtless have aided the prisoner if they had dared.

Instead of condemning them, the officers should receive the thanks of the community for having taught the young toughs of the city a lesson. The defiance of the law, the open insult of officers in pursuit of their sworn duty, has become too frequent in Janesville to pass without notice. The police department has to bear the brunt of all disturbing conditions that arise. They are subject to condemnation by citizens for not preserving order and yet when they make an arrest and appeal for aid in removing the prisoner to a cell, they are derided, criticised and jeered at.

Investigation of last evening's affair by one of the city authorities brings forth the following statement this morning: "I believe the officers were justified in their actions. I have carefully investigated the matter from top to bottom. The man under arrest was an old offender, known to have threatened personal violence to any policeman who sought to arrest him. He was wanted on a serious charge and his resistance of the authority of the officers who captured him justified their subsequent action."

"However, I do not think the action of citizens who assembled like a mob, crowding the officers, and the police, who reviled the authority of the police, urged the prisoner to resist his efforts to escape, by their actions, should pass without condemnation. If the police are to exert any influence for law and order in the city they must be given the support of the citizens when in pursuit of their duty. If citizens have any complaint to make at their actions, there is a sure redress and ready court of appeal in the Fire and Police commission, who will investigate any reasonable charge. The lesson taught the young toughs of the city by last evening's occurrence, while it is to be regretted, is one which will have a lasting effect and make the work of the police easier."

Citizens who have only hearsay evidence on the trouble should refrain from passing judgment until they assure themselves of the truth or falsity of the statements made and of the persons who make them. It is to be regretted that force was necessary, but if the lesson goes home in the quarters it should, then it will do much to relieve the present open defiance of the law on the part of some of the younger element who have become emboldened by seeing companions escape with slight punishment because they were known as "bad men."

THE PRICE PAID.

Under the caption "The Price of Playing Politics," the Wall Street Journal discusses the recent passage of the Panama bill at Washington in a somewhat caustic manner. Evidently the playing of politics by the democratic congress is not approved of by the Journal as the following excerpts from the editorial in question will show:

"Perhaps in attempts to play politics Washington has never made a more appalling mess of any question than that of the Panama Canal bill, and it is only fair to say that president, senate and house have co-operated. Obviously without reading the senators' own action on the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, when in 1900 it rejected Senator Bard's amendment to discriminate in respect of the charges for traffic in favor of its own citizens engaged in the coastwise traffic, Mr. Taft publicly expressed the belief that Panama canal tolls could be remitted to such American ships. He is reaping the fruits of his precipitation. On Monday the stock market advanced Canadian Pacific stock more than two points, on the probable signing of the Panama Canal bill. That document has gone out of its way to change the Interstate Commerce Act, the Sherman law relating to trusts, and a number of other matters which should have no reference to the Panama canal. Included in this supererogatory legislation is the prohibition of railroad ownership of ships plying through the canal, or of ships at all, except by the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. That this country can constitutionally legislate against ownership of steamships by its own railroads is for our courts to decide. That we can assume to dictate the ownership of foreign steamships using the canal is a question of international law, which the owner of such ships will prefer to leave to the Hague Tribunal, conscious of the backing of every maritime nation of the world except ourselves."

"In the fact of the fact that the senate, in passing the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, expressly excluded our coastwise trade from any preference, the present bill has legislated an international law (president, house and senate approving) not only with Great Britain but with every nation which may use the canal. The legislation against all railroad ownership of other seaborne traffic raises another question of equal magnitude. Our position is an awkward one, because if we carry American ships free, and collect tolls from the others, we may have to refund all those tolls in four years or so. The treaty says: 'The canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and war of all nations observing these rules, on terms of entire equality.' It says also: 'That there shall be no discrimination against any such nation' and this protects the foreign ship owner, whose right to appeal to the Hague and ignore our courts is guaranteed by Article IV. of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which effectually disposes of our claim that the territory of the Panama canal is domestic, in the international sense of the word. Here is the article:

"It is agreed that no change of territorial sovereignty or of international relations of the country or countries traversed by the before mentioned canal shall affect the general principle of neutralization or the obligation of the high contracting parties under the present treaty."

"There is a creditable way out, and that is to make the canal free to everybody, or to make everybody pay tolls, until questions of international law are settled; and in the meantime to leave our own railroads alone, lest we grant a crippling preference to the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk railways of Canada, to the enormous detriment of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, and the Southern Pacific railway, to say nothing of our railroads in the Northwest, which own no steamships at all."

HIGHER STANDARDS OF LIVING.

A few days ago a young man went to the immigrant station at New York to receive two aunts who had come over from Dublin. They had but little money and he was challenged as to his ability to support them. He informed the immigrant officials that he was earning $25 a week. Thereupon they refused the two women admission to the country on the ground that $25 a week was insufficient for the support of a family of three.

The young man, as was to be expected of one who was capable of earning $1,200 a year, promptly appealed to the authorities at Washington and they overruled the decision of the New York officials. If they did their whole duty, they also severely reprimanded them and started an investigation to ascertain whether they were compelling all immigrants to measure up to the standard they set in this case. The families in this country that I'd off heard of love at first sight. It was the case with me all right. I looked upon it day by day. At last I lugged the thing away. It's coloring was matchless and 'Twas guaranteed to last the hand. 'Twas highly spoken of, forsooth. But soon I learned the bitter truth. If I'd been told I'd not believed. That I could have been thus deceived. Alas, alas, 'tis never thus. The things that make the hit with us. Are seldom worth the time and fuss. They say that beauty is skin deep. Many husbands and wives are rearing children, even sending some of them through college, living comfortably and saving a little, on less than that and they count themselves fortunate. The $1,200 man is by no means a common man. To the average American the ruling of the New York immigrant inspectors is preposterous.

But the ruling is significant. It demonstrates, in a striking manner the fact that standards of living in the large cities have advanced to the point where they are unreasonable and injurious. Twenty-five dollars a week is no more than sufficient to support one in the manner in which New Yorkers of the grade of immigrant inspectors are now accustomed to live. And beyond any doubt the advance in the standard of living in the large cities has much to do with the general increased cost of living throughout the country.

In the assembly contest in the first district Mr. North of Edgerton is the only one of the three candidates to come out fairly and squarely and state why he wants the nomination on the republican ticket. Mr. North's statement, his record as a justice in Edgerton, are in his favor, and he should be given a good endorsement by voters at the polls on primary day.

The Bull Moozers are going to organize a party in Wisconsin. This fact has been decided upon by the calling of a state convention in Milwaukee, September 11th. Well, now we can know just who are the enemy and not simply guess at them.

The income tax friends are trying hard to boost its popularity, by issuing reports of the great benefits that will accrue in increased revenue, but they fail to state that while the revenues are increasing now there will be a deficit next year, as many of the industries, taxed today, will be in another state next year.

Republicans throughout the country are waking up to the fact that all is not gold that glitters and that the attacks upon the Taft administration by Wilson, Bryan, Roosevelt and others were for political purposes only. The anti-Taft leaders are realizing that their cause is fast being classed with the retreat of Napoleon from Moscow.

Carefully and noiselessly he opened the door of his bedroom and crossed the threshold with the grace of an Indian on the trail.

Unfortunately, however, the family cat was enjoying a well earned rest on the rug by the bedside, and the master of the house elected under a misapprehension, to deposit the weight of his foot upon the feline's caudal appendage.

Naturally the feline uttered a shrill and noisome complaint, piercing sounds that awakened the mistress of the house. This good lady sat up in bed, perturbed, but not at a loss. "Frederic," she murmured, "don't you think it's a trifle late to be singing?"

AN OLD REMEDY

Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived a score of patent tonics, reason being, it is a satisfactory tonic, appetizer and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, listless feeling or run-down condition of the system after illness of any kind. It tones the whole system, stimulates digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than malt extracts or so-called wine of cod liver oil that depend upon their stimulants alone. Beef, Iron and Wine tones and sustains, it assists nature to recuperate, it's a food to the sick and nursing mothers.

Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares our Beef, Iron and Wine. It's always fresh, made from the very best extract of beef, wholesome, properly aged sherry wine and soluble iron.

We don't sell ready-made, hand-made, factory-manufactured, Beef, Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicine should be compounded only by the experienced and scientifically trained.

Try a bottle of our Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Pfennig, 75c a full pint. Note its wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts. The drug store that makes a specialty of drugs.

SPEEDY TRIAL FOR SHOOTER OF FACH

Elizabeth M. Edmunds and Albert C. Fach.

In jail, charged with having attempted to murder Albert C. Fach, the young district attorney of Richwood county, N. Y., a few days ago, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Edmunds is awaiting trial. Her lawyers have given the public no inkling of what her defense will be, but an attempt may be made to prove that she was insane when the act was committed. As district attorney, Fach handled the criminal case which Mrs. Edmunds recently brought against her husband for alleged abandonment. Edmunds was tried, with Mr. Fach as prosecutor, and acquitted. Mrs. Edmunds told many people that she did not believe Fach had tried as hard to convict Edmunds as he should. She wrote threatening letters to him shortly before the shooting occurred, and Fach had seriously considered protecting himself by a bodyguard.

Mrs. James Liburn had a difficult operation performed this morning at her home in Emerald Grove.

PRISONER IS HELD UNDER HEAVY BAIL

HUGH WAGGONER ARRAIGNED IN COURT THIS MORNING ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

RESISTED OFFICERS

Encouraged by Many Citizens in His Attempt to Prevent Being Taken to Police Station.

Hugh Waggoner, arrested last evening after a hard fight by Officers Sam Brown and Sam Dorn, was arraigned in Municipal court this morning on a charge of robbing Robert Denner, a gold watch valued at ten dollars, on Saturday evening, August 17.

Waggoner waived his examination, but at the request of District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie, Judge McFadden decided that the prisoner be given an examination to see if he should be held for trial, fixing the time for examination at ten o'clock Tuesday morning to give the district attorney time to locate a witness in the case.

Waggoner appeared in court this morning, his head swathed in bandages, the result of his attempt last evening to escape from the officers. He was arrested at the corner of Franklin and Milwaukee streets, but when Officer Brown started toward the station with his prisoner, Waggoner started to fight and Officer Sam Dorn assisted Brown.

Waggoner fought the officers all the way to the station, and kicked and badly bruised Officer Brown about the body. A pair of "come-alongs" (handcuffs) were put on Waggoner's wrists, but the chain was broken by Waggoner.

While the officers were taking their prisoner to the police station, several citizens, it is said, urged him to resist the officers, encouraging him in his efforts to break away.

Except for the bandages on his head, Waggoner seemed to show but little of the effects of the beating the officers are alleged to have found it necessary to administer, and walked into and out of the court room with his usual jaunty air. Handcuffs were put on his wrists this morning when he was taken to the county jail by Officer Champion.

The charges brought against Waggoner of committing robbery from the person and receiving stolen goods, are the result of an attack which Waggoner is alleged to have made on Mr. Denner Saturday evening. While Mr. Denner was on his way to his home at 221 Center avenue, when he was stopped by a man who asked for a match. Mr. Denner was about to comply with the request when he received a blow on the jaw which completely knocked him off his feet.

His head struck on the cement sidewalk and he was stunned for a moment. When he recovered consciousness, he found his assailant standing over him, searching the pockets of his clothes. Mr. Denner attempted to defend himself, but was choked until he was again insensible. The watch and money were taken from his pockets, and the thug battered his victim's head upon the sidewalk.

Afterwards he recovered consciousness sufficiently to realize that a man was standing over him and asking him what was the matter, but Mr. Denner was too dazed to answer. He was picked up and laid on the terrace at the side of the walk.

A pedestrian who came along a short time after found Mr. Denner sitting on the terrace and took him to his boarding place on Center avenue. Mr. Denner had both eyes blacked and was cut about the head. He was forced to remain in bed all day Sunday, and when he reported for work Monday morning at the shop of George & Clemens, his employers, noting his condition, asked the trouble and on learning the facts, Mr. Clemens reported the matter to the police.

The matter was hushed by the police at the time to await developments and yesterday it was learned that the watch had been shown to a man down town. Suspicion was directed toward Waggoner and he was found on Milwaukee street shortly after six and the arrest made.

Waggoner has a police record in this city, and in other cities of the state, it is said. Before he was of age he was sent to the state reform school and shortly after his release from there was sentenced to the reformatory at Green Bay. While he was being taken to Green Bay he made his escape by jumping across the railroad tracks at a transfer point in front of an incoming train.

He was later captured. Since then he has been arrested a number of times and sent to jail. His most recent escapade was when he caused a disturbance in a restaurant and paid a fine of eighteen dollars by borrowing the money.

The arrest of Waggoner caused considerable commotion on the streets and many persons gathered around to criticize the methods used by the police in taking him to the police station. The prisoner is known as a tough customer and resisted the officers in every possible way, kicking and fighting back, severely injuring both Brown and Dorn in his endeavor to escape.

Several in the crowd, more noticeable than the rest, roundly condemned the police for clubbing the man and one man is alleged to have laid his arm on an officer's arm in attempting to aid the prisoner. It is probable that several warrants will be sworn out tomorrow charging these men with inciting resistance of the officers, though one of the police station today denied the charge and said he aided the officers.

Waggoner has long posed as a bad man and has terrorized many more peaceful of his companions at different times. He has boasted no officer could arrest him and the precautions taken last evening were due to this threat. The criticism of the officers appears to have been unfounded by the results and was very ill timed.

MILITIAMEN FAVOR BILL IN CONGRESS

Officers and Men of Wisconsin National Guard Endorse Militia Pay Bill.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 22.—The Wisconsin National Guard, officers and men, warmly endorse the purpose of the organized militia pay bill now pending in congress. Adjutant General O. R. Boardman said in an interview that the proposed plan is reasonable and also highly desirable from the standpoint of efficiency.

At present the state militia are in the service only of the state and are paid by their sovereignty. Under the bill proposed by the committee on military affairs, they will receive pay also from the United States government, on the theory that they are serving the federal government as well as the state.

"Under present conditions," said Adjutant General Boardman, "the Wisconsin troops can legally be called for service by the president for national defense as well as by the governor for state purposes. Thus they are not only being educated for any duty for the state of Wisconsin but for any duty for the United States. The constitution says the militia may be used in the United States service only to suppress insurrections, repel invasions and execute the laws of the union. The courts have construed that the president cannot use the militia outside of the United States; they could not, therefore, be sent into Mexico unless they volunteered their services. Under the proposed law the president can order them out just as the regular army may be ordered out.

"If the state militia throughout the country are organized the same as the army, with the same equipment and the same instruction, they will become to all intents and purposes equal to the United States army. This bill having established that state of things, the state soldiers will be entitled to the same pay as soldiers of the United States government."

The bill provides that enlisted men in the National Guard shall receive 25 per cent of the pay of the enlisted men of corresponding grade of the regular army. They attend not less than 45 drills each year. The men get proportionately more than the officers. It is estimated it will require an annual appropriation of $9,234,729 to pay the state militia, Wisconsin's share being $190,541. The greater majority of the officers and men composing the National Guard are now giving their services at financial sacrifice. The bill proposes that enlisted men shall receive $45 per year, the pay of non-commissioned officers varying according to rank.

EXPECT DECISIONS ON THREE MATTERS

State Railroad Commission Has Been Investigating The Baggage, Parlor Car and Express Rates in State.

The three-fold investigation of baggage, parlor car and express rates by the Wisconsin railroad commission is practically concluded and Commissioner Halford Ericson said yesterday that a decision in all three cases will be announced shortly.

Claiming that the baggage rates in this state are excessive the commercial traveling men some time ago petitioned the commission to direct the railroads to permit traveling men to carry the same amount of baggage as is allowed in Canada—300 pounds.

The parlor car rates in this state were increased over a year and a half ago by the railroads. The brief examination of the reports of parlor car companies made at that time by the commission revealed that perhaps these rates were not excessive, in order to get the basis of the complaint, the commission directed a detailed examination to be made of the rates charged passengers in this state. This is now clearly completed and the decision is expected in a few weeks.

For the past six weeks the commission has been attempting to unify its proposed rates, which it proposes to announce in a decision soon, with the new rates recently ordered by the interstate commerce commission. Statistical tables showing the rates on express matter fixed by the federal commission have been compiled by the state commission, but it is evident that in a number of cases at least the reductions to be made by the Wisconsin body will be somewhat below those fixed by the interstate commerce commission. It is now obvious that had the commission announced its findings in the express cases prior to the ruling by the interstate commerce commission, there would have been a multitude of conflicting rates in force in this state. To unify the rates, at the same time giving the public the benefit of every reasonable rate possible to make is the work in which it is stated the commission is now engaged.

USED FIRE ENGINE TO EXCAVATE DIRT

Fire Department's Equipment Used for Hydraulic Purposes at West Approach of Fourth Avenue Bridge.

The steam fire engine owned by the city fire department was put to a unique use for hydraulic purposes yesterday and incidentally saved a considerable amount of money in excavation work at the west end approach to the Fourth avenue bridge. Buried in the dirt at the west end approach was considerable timber and other debris, which it was desired to remove. To remove this by digging and hauling it out, would have taken several days' labor, but the ingenuity of Chief Klein of the fire department solved the problem. The steam fire engine was brought close enough to the river to draw a supply of water and was set at work. The pumps of the engine were worked at about two hundred pounds' pressure, throwing a stream of from six hundred and fifty to seven hundred gallons of water per minute through an inch and a quarter nozzle. About three hours' time was consumed in performing the work.

SEEMS to me," said John, looking with something like disgust at the meat platter before him, "that we have stewed all the time."

"Everything is so high," sighed Dolly, "I just have to get inexpensive meals once in a while."

"When a fellow's been working hard all day," went on John, "to come home to stew is pretty tough. He needs something appetizing and nourishing." He regards the table gloomily.

"I can't buy any more than I can," said Dolly, "with the money I have."

"If you want better things you'll have to give me more money."

"Give you more money! I give you all I get now. I buy the meanest and cheapest lunches of anybody in the office. I bet our stenographer gets better lunches than I do."

"I don't know what I can do," said Dolly.

"That's what you always say," retorted John. "But I must say, some women seem to manage. I was out to Russell's the other night, and I wish you'd see the dinner Mrs. Russell gave us—a clear soup, not the stodgy stuff we have, and roast lamb, and a lot of vegetables and salad and some sort of food stuff and coffee. And Russell does not get the salary I do, that I know."

"But that dinner was for company," said Dolly almost in tears.

"Company!" snorted John. "I wonder if I ain't as good as company. But that's just like you. If there was company you'd have a respectable meal. But since it's only me, I get stew." He pushed his plate away.

"What in the world is the matter with you?" asked Dolly. "I don't believe you are well."

"No man can be well who works like I do and then gets such stuff as this to eat. Pie! What in the world do you have pie for on a hot night like this? Don't you know you ought to have fruit? An ice-cold water-melon would be the thing."

"But you are awfully fond of peach pie," said Dolly, "and I made it myself."

But John refused to touch it, and angrily pushed back his chair and left the table.

The tears came into Dolly's eyes as she surveyed the untasted food. "Something is surely the matter with John," she thought. "Things must have gone wrong at the office."

A cigar on the porch gradually soothed John into a better humor. He began to think longingly of the pie. Peach pie was his favorite. Also he concluded he had been a brute to Dolly.

"Don't mind what I said about dinner," he went in and told Dolly. "Your dinner was all right, dear. I'm a lucky fellow to have such an economical little wife. And I want a piece of that pie. Nobody can beat you at pies."

Dolly beamed and hurried to get the pie. "I was terribly afraid you were sick, dear, because you never talk that way."

"I oughtn't to talk that way to the best little wife in the world. Have a piece of pie yourself."

"I believe I will," said Dolly.

Pertinent Suggestions on the care of the little ones during the hot months.

By DR. LESLIE D. SMITH, M. D., D. O.

Readers are invited to use this service by asking questions of Dr. Smith regarding specific cases. Answers will be published in these columns in the order questions are received. Personal replies will be given at no cost when stamped envelope is sent with question. Address all questions to Dr. Smith, care of the Daily Gazette.

Dr. Smith will not prescribe in any case, but will gladly advise the best course to pursue.

Do not take yourself too seriously. When youngsters of any age lose the play instinct there is something radically wrong with them. In the older youngsters it is sometimes a mental bias, or perhaps, an overplus of dignity. Dignity is closely associated with decadence, with clogging up of the mental and physical machinery.

We have long ago learned to associate dignity with rheumatism, gout, puffy eyelids, silk hats and whiskers, longed for and noodle dogs. People with their proclivities have long since lost the play instinct, and are on the toboggan which leads to oblivion.

The tendency has been, until yesterday to take life too seriously. The English say we make a fetish of business to the extent of neglecting homelife, the cultivation of friendships, recreation and the play instinct. The automobile is one of the greatest, if not the greatest factor in the rejuvenation of the play instinct. Thousands are casting aside their cloak of assumed dignity as a result of this rejuvenating influence and are youngsters once more in spirit at least.

Exercising the play instinct is conducive to longevity. Not only is it conducive, but it is essential to longevity. It is said that a man is as old as he thinks he is and a woman is as old as she looks. A hint to the women: cultivate the play instinct. Take an interest in children and young people and their amusements and you will soon be surprised how young you feel—and look.

Take an interest in all wholesome amusements, especially those that take you outdoors and note the rejuvenating effect, not only upon your self, but those with whom you come in contact. Whoever thinks of considering the age of a person who is always cheerful and jovial and ready to take a turn at anything offering amusement? Youth, then, is not necessarily a matter of years. Do not take life too seriously and cultivate the play habit.

Let us now consider the youngsters with "big-tails" and those in knee trousers. The child who doesn't play at every opportunity offered, the better have his physical and mental condition looked into. However, the child may be a victim of "don'ts" or of too much parental dignity (assumed). His parents may belong to that rapidly diminishing class who look upon any physical expression of joy in living of vigorous health, as being rude and undignified, don't you know. Nemes, however, is taking care of that "class".

Encourage children to play—to play out of doors as much as possible. When they are at vigorous play they are storing up health and vitality and energy to be drawn upon later, perhaps in some crisis when the amount of vital energy means life or death—success or failure.

Dr. Fisher of New York says, "Play is valuable as a social school; the boy is first introduced into society through play. It is there he first becomes acquainted with the world's Democracy. I remember I turned one boy loose amongst this Democracy gang—he received many hard knocks and thought it hard at first, but he learned to hold his own as he could have learned in no other school." The boy who never plays with others never learns the amenities of social life, and you cannot teach an old dog new tricks. The boy without a playground is father to the man without a job, and the boy with a bad playground is father to the man with a job he should not have.

FOOD FROM THE CHAFING DISH.

The chafing dish is like seasonal weather, always seasonal, and may be used to regale a theater or a party equally entertaining.

The empty spit. Ne'er cherished wit; Mi-nerva loves the larder.

For a really enjoyable dish nothing is nicer than frogs' legs. Clean and trim a dozen of the hind legs; season with salt, pepper and roll in crumbs; egg, then crumbs again and saute in butter. Cook only a few at a time, as they should be well browned in the hot blazer. Serve with Sauce Tartare. This is mayonnaise dressing with capers, parsley, olives and pickles and a half a small green onion added, all chopped fine.

Scrambled eggs with cheese is a combination easily prepared in the chafing dish. Scramble the eggs and add just before serving four tablespoonfuls of grated cheese.

Sicilian Omelet.—Beat three eggs slightly, add a teaspoonful of sugar and a pinch of salt. Butter the sides of the blazer, turn in the omelet and cook. Turn on to the platter and serve with Sicilian sauce. Beat half a cup of heavy cream, add a tablespoonful of powdered sugar, and a tablespoonful of melted currant jelly, and one and a half tablespoonfuls of powdered macaroons.

Smothered Mushrooms.—Prepare a cup of fresh mushrooms. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add the mushrooms, sprinkle with salt, paprika and cook slowly for ten minutes. Dredge with one and a half tablespoonfuls of flour and add half a cup of chicken stock. As soon as heated add two eggs slightly beaten and a grating of nutmeg. Be sure that the flour is cooked before adding the eggs.

Chicken a la Reine.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and add the yolks of three hard-cooked eggs, rubbed to a paste. Soak one-fourth of a cup of cracker crumbs in the same amount of milk and add the egg mixture. Pour on gradually one cup of chicken stock, then add a cup of finely cut cooked chicken. Season with salt, paprika and celery salt. Serve on toast.

Great Work Done by Boys.

Painting is not the only art in which masterpieces have been produced by mere boys. Although it was not published until a year later, it is probable that Kats wrote his famous Ode to Autumn in his sixteenth year, and, indeed, all his five great odes, among the greatest in any language, before he attained legal manhood. He died at twenty-five, so that all the masterpieces which came from his pen may be regarded as the production of a boy.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A SUGGESTION OR TWO.

"TAKE all my work that I possibly can, outdoors, and to bring outdoors in to me as much as possible" is the spring and summer motto of the lady-who-always-knows-somewhat.

Every pleasant morning—and pleasant means every morning when it is not actually raining—I see her out on her back porch sewing, preparing vegetables, beating a cake, or doing any other task which can by any possibility be attended to there.

In the spring and summer she does all her ironing out of doors, and when she has much stitching to do she has her sewing machine brought out on the porch.

Bringing outdoors indoors means of course having all the windows open as much as possible.

The lady-who-always-knows-somewhat is very well and strong. She gives much of the credit to the plentiful supply of fresh air with which she enlivens her household duties.

It seems to me that a great many housewives might with advantage follow her lead in this.

"It has been a habit of mine since leaving school and even before that," writes one of my reader-friends, "when I came across a quotation or a thought beautifully expressed that I felt would help me, to write it down and put it where I could see it very often, for instance on my dresser, until I had memorized it. This has been such a wonderful help to me that I wanted you to suggest it to your readers. Now I am a 'housewife woman' and I find it even more useful. Sometimes that one verse or thought will occur to me again and again during the day, and of course it cannot help but benefit me. Very often it is a real inspiration when I become discouraged.

"Then, too, I believe in passing these thoughts on. I often copy one off and send it to some girl I know would enjoy it."

I am very glad indeed to pass along this suggestion, for I do not believe there is one of us who has not been helped at least once, most of us many times, by remembering some inspiring sentiment in a moment of storm and stress, or a time of difficult decision.

We all approve of laying by material wealth for a rainy day. Surely it is also well to lay by mental and spiritual wealth for the stormy day of depression or sorrow or temptation.

I thoroughly recommend my letter-friend's idea. Don't just read and admire the helpful bit of poetry or striking sentiment. Perhaps you think you will remember it from one reading, and maybe you will for tomorrow, but the day after tomorrow it will probably be gone. Cut it out or copy it and put it on your desk or your dresser or over your sink, any place where you will half unconsciously read it a dozen times a day. Keep it there until it becomes an integral part of your grey matter, almost as unforgettable as your name.

In this way, and in this way only, can you make it really your own and be sure of its help when you most need it.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Hensietta D. Crowl

add the heated sugar and boil ten minutes longer. Ripe grapes require but two-thirds of a pound of sugar to pint of juice; tart or green grapes need a pound and a half to a pint.

The Concord is the first grape to appear on city fruit stands and the last to leave. Early in the season the Delaware is a rival, but it does not bear so prolifically so it is higher in price. The Catawba is an excellent grape, but does not ripen in this climate until later. These three varieties are our best known. The quantity of grapes consumed annually for food is enormous, yet one need not be very old to remember when a bunch of grapes upon any city table, except that of the wealthy, was a rarity. The cheapening of small fruits during the past generation has improved American health and, indirectly, American civilization. Best of all of them is the grape. It appeals to the esthetic taste as well as to the palate. It is grateful to the eye and to the stomach and is in reach of the leanest purse.

Grape preserves are not difficult to make, though the recipe sounds complicated, and they are so rich that they compensate for any trouble in making.

Press the pulp from each grape into a porcelain kettle. Save the skins. Boil the pulps until tender, when all the seeds will sink to the bottom of the kettle. Lift the pulp out with a strainer and strain the juice away from the seed. Mix the skin, juice and pulp together and add as much sugar as you have fruit. Boil all together until as thick as marmalade. Seal while hot the same as other preserves.

Green fox grapes or any variety of grape that is just commencing to ripen will give a clear, crimson, tart jelly. Riper grapes give darker jelly. This is the rule pick the grapes from the stems and wash; add a pint of water to every two quarts of grapes. Simmer until they are soft and broken; turning the mass over now and again so they will cook evenly. Strain through a thick, jelly cloth. Here is a "hint." Place the juice thus obtained in a deep crock and let it stand over night. The grape sugar will settle to the bottom. Pour off the liquor without disturbing the sediment and your jelly will never sugar or crystallize as grape jelly so often does.

Boil the strained juice ten minutes;

Wash the grapes, which should be ripe, free from the stems and place in a porcelain kettle. For every three quarts of fruit add one quart of water. Bring to the boiling point slowly and boil ten minutes. Strain through a heavy cloth, return to the heat and when it boils again bottle and seal immediately.

Grape jelly is very palatable and excellent for the table and especially nice for jelly cakes and rolls. It is more easily made than almost any other, and in large families where a great quantity is used most satisfactory.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

E. J. K. Woolley

"You remember that girl I had washing for me for four years?" she asked a certain housewife of our acquaintance the other day. "You know I took her when she couldn't talk English. I trained her, got her customers, paid her the highest wages and bore with her peculiarities, largely because I felt sorry for her."

"She was always telling me her troubles. Her mother was sick and in the hospital most of the time. She had two younger sisters and one of those was sick most of the time. She had lost her father and brother, and was the only support of the family. I just dripped sympathy for the poor little thing."

"We literally supported that family all the first winter, and sent jellies and warm clothes for the invalids, and had the youngest sister up in my house most of the time. Then Jennie got a beau, and I went through all the agonies with her as to whether he did or didn't love her. Finally he proposed, and her mother made a fuss about her marrying. I had to straighten that out, too."

"Well, it's the last time," she remarked, throwing the pencil aside.

"But doesn't it beat all," she finished, "how some people haven't any shame or pride? People like us have a hard time of it. When I think how Will and I have longed to own our little home and haven't succeeded yet, while we've been helping people like that to get ahead of us, I want to go out and lick somebody to a frazzle—I do!"

"Well, it's the last time," she remarked, throwing the pencil aside.

STORM WAVE COMING THE LAST OF MONTH

Foster Weather Bureau Predicts Heavy Storms and Tornadoes for Next Disturbance.

(Copyrighted 1912 by W. T. Foster.)

Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Aug. 25 to 29, warm wave 24 to 28, cool wave 27 to 31. Moderate temperatures are expected with this disturbance, and only small rains in the predicted rain sections and no rains in the drought predicted sections.

Recently I have traveled extensively in the great crop-growing states and I found more than half the corn crop a month late and much of it will never mature. There are many sections where dry weather is hurting corn. Much winter wheat was plowed up and the acreage now used in the calculations is not correct. There is no grass for pasturage and beef cattle are being sold early on that account.

All crops are good around and in the vicinity of the great lakes. I still advise not to sell cotton, corn, oats, wheat. It is bad business policy to sell products so early. My advice is to hold grain and cotton till January or February. Don't forget that advice on these bulletins has proven good for years past.

Next disturbance will reach the Pacific coast about Aug. 29, across Pacific slope by close of 30, great central valleys 31 to Sept. 2, eastern sections 3. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Aug. 29, great central valleys 31, eastern sections Sept. 2. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Sept. 1, great central valleys 3, eastern sections 5.

Temperatures of the week in which the warm wave passes your longitude on the central day will average about normal, the storm forces will be greater than usual, causing severe storms in places and rainfall will be generally below the usual amount. Indications are favorable to thunder storms, hail storms and possibly tornadoes from Aug. 26 to Sept. 2.

Another disturbance will reach the Pacific coast about Sept. 5, cross Pacific slope by close of 6, great central valleys 7 to 9, eastern sections 10.

Kidney Trouble Vanishes GAINED EIGHTEEN POUNDS

Some time ago I was troubled with what the doctors pronounced to be floating kidney. I was so completely run down and so weak and exhausted that I did my housework one day I would have to stay in bed the next. I doctored with several physicians and they all told me that my kidneys would never be well. I decided to try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and found that I got relief. I continued the use of Swamp-Root and to-day my kidneys are in fine shape and I am enjoying the best of health. Have gained eighteen pounds, and feel as well as ever in my life. You can publish this letter if you wish to.

Very truly yours,
MRS. JOHN S. JONES,

Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Sept. 5, great central valleys 7, eastern sections 9. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Sept. 8, great central valleys 10, eastern sections 12.

This disturbance will be moderate with moderate temperatures and not much rain. A large part of the corn crop will be newly in silk, tassle and the milk, or not yet in good roasting ear and in some sections the dry weather will be injuring the late corn at this time. Temperatures are expected to gradually go higher till near Sept. 20, and then fall rapidly to 26 and 30 and about these dates killing frosts will go far southward but not far enough to damage cotton.

It may be that the holes in the atmosphere, found by aviators, will lead scientists to recognize that the earth is surrounded by an electrosphere of great density and that all the supposed wave motions that carry sound are in that electrosphere and not in the atmosphere. Surely the wireless telegraph operates through an electrosphere and not through the atmosphere. That electrosphere relates with the earth and by that means the moon is pushed around the earth in the same directions that the earth rotates, from west to east. The most standpoint, or conservative, are those in government employ. They must be pushed before they will go forward.

CONDUCTORS ASKED TO LOOK FOR ROSENTHAL MURDERERS

Circulars Sent Out By New York Police Department Received At Local Station For Conductor's Rooms.

Circulars giving descriptions of Louis Rosenberg and Harry Horowitz, wanted in New York for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, and for George Wilson, alias Wilson, alias Charles Williams, and who has a number of other names, have been received at the local station of the St. Paul railroad, addressed to the conductor's room. The evident purpose of the circulars is to inform the conductors, so that they might be able to identify the men, should they be riding on any of the trains. The circular for the alleged Rosenthal murderers states that they would be likely to be found in places where crowds congregate, picking pockets. Both are users of opium. Williams is wanted for escaping from the New York city jail, where he was being held on a charge of burglary and carrying concealed weapons. He is fond of bathing, the circular states, and might be found at some of the summer resorts or on trains going to the resorts.

FOURTH CHAPTER IN NEIGHBORHOOD FEUD

Suit Brought In Beloit Court Again Brings Shopiere Families Into Line Light.

By swearing out a warrant in the Beloit municipal court the head of the Shimmeal family of Shopiere has started the fourth chapter in the serial feud between the Capman and Shopiere clans of the village of Shopiere. This time Mrs. Capman is charged with using abusive language and a solution of the difficulties is far removed.

The cause of the trouble in the beginning was a goat which not being content to remain on the premises of his owner, rammed away and in his wandering made a visit to the Shimmeal farm, with the result that his owner was haled into court and fined for letting her pet run at large.

This affair proved the first fuel to the flame, and it was not long before Shimmeal swore out another warrant for Mrs. Capman, this time for assault and battery.

This was tried in a Janesville court and decided in favor of the defendant, who was accused of assaulting Shimmeal.

Shimmeal appealed the case to the circuit court and the case will be decided in October.

Chapter number three was added a short time ago when several of Mrs. Capman's chickens rammed over the Shimmeal premises to make a social call, with the result that Mrs. Capman was fined for allowing her chickens to run at large.

The case was tried in the Beloit court and was appealed by the defendant, and this with the assault and battery case are pending the next session of the circuit court in October.

SIDEWALK KETCHES. BEAUTY HINT NO. 1. (By Howard L. Rann.)

FOR the benefit of our women readers who wish to prevent their beauty from souring and retain the budding bloom of the marriage morn, at a minimum of expense, we append a few hints gleaned from a long, painful and costly experience with the female gender.

Our recipes are perfectly harmless and can be used between meals with entire safety. We shall first treat with the subject of hair which next to the privilege of free speech and plenty of it, is the crowning glory of womanhood.

There are two kinds of hair—domestic and imported. Domestic hair is held in place by centrifugal force, and should not be pulled out to make room for the foreign article. This kind of hair is quite adhesive, and will stick to the shoulder of a blue serge in a very brazen manner.

Imported hair is a Chinese product and comes in the form of the rat, the switch and the puff, and the greatest of these is the switch. This variety of hair has to be fitted on with a lot of repairing tools, ranging from the wire hair-pin to that seductive device known as the kid curler.

Curly hair is a manifestation of a prejudiced and unscrupulous providence, and as an evidence of rank favoritism is a decided success.

In buying a switch, care should be exercised to secure a color that will match up within four or five shades of the natural article. A switch which does not harmonize with the scenery about it is a greater disappointment than a pink waist over a green skirt.

The hair should be washed in semi-annual installments, which will make it so pliable that it can be bent into any shape, from a clever imitation of the Shoshone falls to the rugged promontory called the Psyche knot.

In order to secure a fetching pompadour effect, cause the hair to leap over a small trellis and allow it to fall gracefully in the direction of the setting sun.

Do not dye the hair with anything except fast colors. A head of hair which looks like a faded Navajo blanket will never land the wearer in the smart set.

DR. FAVILLE GIVES VIEWS ON ETHICS OF SALES RING.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Aug. 22.—Dr. Henry B. Faville, the Chicago physician, who is extensively engaged in the livestock industry, gives his views on the ethics of the sales ring in an article published here today.

"The easiest thing in the world to create is a suspicion that sales are not bona fide," he says. "No sale has any right to be characterized by 'bidding.' It is a great temptation to protect valuable stock against an unappreciative market, but if this is done at all, there is no limit to the degree to which it may be done, and confidence in the squareness of the sale is inevitably and properly destroyed."

"I believe the dairy industry and particularly the pure-bred industry will be best served by a complete development of an auction method. In order, however, to have it reach the point of reliability both for buyer and seller, the principals I have mentioned must be safeguarded. On the whole, I believe the standard both as to quality and ethics is improving."

"The sorrow of a deserted man," returned the actor with now, for the first time, something of the dignity of real feeling in his manner.

"Oh," the monosyllabic was extremely noncommittal, but it had the air of finality as though Dominick intended to say no more.

"Has she—er—left you?" said the girl in a low and rather awestricken voice.

The actor inclined his head in an acquiescent bow:

"She has."

Again there was a pause. Unless Buford chose to be more biographical, the conversation appeared to have come to a deadlock. Neither of the listeners could at this stage break into his reserve with questions and yet to switch off on a new subject was not to be thought of at a moment of such emotional intensity. The actor evidently felt this, for he said suddenly, with a relapse into a lighter tone, and letting his eyebrows escape from an overshadowing closeness to his eyes:

"But why should I trouble you with the sorrows that have cast their shadow on me? Why should my matrimonial troubles be allowed to darken the brightness of two young lives which have not yet known the joys and the perils of the wedded state?"

The pause that followed this remark was the most portentous that had yet fallen on the trio. Rose cast a surreptitious glance at the dark figure of young Ryan, lying back in the shadows of the arm-chair. As she looked he stirred and said with the abrupt, hard dryness which had marked his manner since Buford's entrance:

"Don't take too much for granted, Mr. Buford. I've known some of the joys and perils of the wedded state myself."

The actor stared at him in open-eyed surprise.

"Do I rightly understand," he said, "that you are a married man?"

"You do," returned Dominick.

"Really now, I never would have guessed it! Pardon me for not having given you the full dues of your position. Your wife, I take it, has no knowledge of the risk she recently ran of losing her husband?"

"I hope not."

"Well," he replied with a manner of sudden cheery playfulness, "we'll take good care that she doesn't learn. When the wires are up we'll concoct a telegram that shall be a masterpiece of diplomatic lying. Lucky young man to have a loving wife at home. Of all of us you are the one who can best realize the meaning of the line, 'It is sweet to know there is an eye to mark our coming and—'"

Dominick threw the rug off and rose to his feet.

"If you can get Perley to help me I'll go upstairs again. I'm tired and I'll go back to my room."

He tried to step forward, but the pain of his unhealed foot was unbearable, and he caught the edge of the table and held it, his face paling with sudden anguish. The actor, startled by the abruptness of his uprising, approached him with a vague proffer of assistance and was arrested by his sharp command:

"Go and get Perley! He's in the bar probably. I can't stand this way for long. Hurry up!"

Buford ran out of the room, and Rose somewhat timidly drew near the young man, braced against the table, his eyes down-bent, his face hard in the struggle with sudden and unfamiliar pain.

"Can't I help you?" she said. "Perley may not be there. Mr. Buford and I can get you up stairs."

"Oh, no," he answered, his words short but his tone more conciliatory. "It's nothing to bother about. I'd have wrung that man's neck if I'd had to listen to him five minutes longer."

Here Perley and Buford entered, and the former, offering his support to the invalid, led him hobbling out of the door into the hall. The actor looked after them for a moment, and then came back to the fire where Miss Cannon was standing, thoughtfully regarding the burning logs.

"I've no doubt," he said, "that young Mr. Ryan is an estimable gentleman, but he certainly appears to be possessed by a very impatient and ugly temper."

Buford had found Miss Cannon one of the most amiable and charming ladies he had ever met, and it was therefore a good deal of a surprise to have her turn upon him a face of cold, reproving disagreement, and remark in a voice that matched it:

"I don't agree with you at all, Mr. Buford, and you seem quite to forget that Mr. Ryan has been very sick and is still in great pain."

Buford was exceedingly abashed. He would not have offended Miss Cannon for anything in the world, and it seemed to him that a being so compact of graciousness and consideration would be the first to censure an exhibition of ill-humor such as young Ryan had just made. He stammered an apologetic sentence and it did not add to his comfort to see that she was not entirely mollified by it and to feel that she exhaled a slight, disapproving coldness that put him at a great distance and made him feel mortified and ill at ease.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Unknown Eros.

The ten days that followed were among the most important of Dominick Ryan's life. Looking back at them he wondered that he had been so blind to the transformation of his being which was taking place. Great emotional crises are often not any more recognized, by the individuals, than great transitional epochs are known by the nations experiencing them. Dominick did not realize that the most engrossing, compelling passion he had ever felt was slowly invading him. He did not argue that he was falling in love with a woman that he could never own and of whom it was a sin to think. He did not argue or think about anything. He was as a vessel gradually filling with elemental forces, and like the vessel he was passive till some jar would shake it and the forces would run over. Meantime he was held by a determination, mutinous and unreasoning as the determination of a child, to live in the present. He had the feeling of the desert traveler who has found the oasis. The desert lay behind him, burning and sinister with the agony of his transit, and the desert lay before him with its horrors to be faced, but for the moment he could lie still and rest and forget by the fountain under the cool of the trees.

He did not consciously think of Rose. But if she were not there he was uneasy till she came again. His secret exhilaration at her approach, the dead blankness of his lack of her when she was absent, told him nothing. These were the feelings he had, and they filled him and left no cool residue of reason wherewith to watch and guard. He was taken unawares, so dreadfully confident of his allegiance to his particular private tragedy that he did not admit the possibility of a defection. A sense of rest was on him and he set it down—if he ever thought of it at all—to the relief of a temporary respite. Poor Dominick, with his inexperience of sweet things, did not argue that respite from pain should be a quiescent, contented condition of being, far removed from that state of secret, troubled gladness that thrilled him at the sound of a woman's footstep.

No situation could have been invented better suited for the fostering of sentiment. His helpless state demanded her constant attention. The attitude of nurse to patient, the solicitude of the consoling woman for the disabled, suffering man, have been, since time immemorial, recognized aids to romance. Rose, if an unawakened woman, was enough of one to enjoy richly this maternal office of alternate cossetting and ruling one who, in the natural order of things, should have stood alone in his strength, dictating the law. Perhaps the human female so delights in this particular opportunity for tyranny because it is one of her few chances for indulging her passion for authority.

Rose, if she did not quite revel in it, discreetly enjoyed her period of dominance. In the beginning Dominick had been not a man but a patient—about the same to her as the doll is to the little girl. Then when he began to get better, and the man rose, tingling with renewed life, from the ashes of the patient, she quickly fell back into the old position. With the inherited, dainty deceptiveness of generations of women, who, while they were virtuous, were also charming, she relinquished her dominion and retreated into that enfolding maidenly reserve and docility which we feel quite sure was the manner adopted by the ladies of the Stone Age when they felt it necessary to manage their lords.

She was as unconscious of all this as Dominick was of his growing absorption in her. If he was troubled she was not. The days saw her growing gay, more blithe and light-hearted. She sang about the corridors, her smile grew more radiant, and every man in the hotel felt the power of her awakening womanhood. Her boyish frankness of demeanor was still undimmed by the first blurring breath of passion. If Dominick was not in the parlor her disappointment was as candid as a child's whose mother had forgotten to bring home candy. All that she showed of consciousness was that when he was there and there was no disappointment, she concealed her satisfaction, wrapped herself in a sudden, shy quietness, as completely extinguishing of all beneath as a nun's habit.

The continued, enforced intimacy into which their restricted quarters and indoor life threw them could not have been more effectual in fanning the growing flame if designed by a malicious Fate. There was only one sitting-room, and, unable to go out, they sat side by side in it all day. They read together, they talked, they played cards. They were seldom alone, but the presence of "Bill" Cannon, groaning over the fire with a three-weeks-old newspaper for company, was not one that diverted their attention from each other; and Cora and Willoughby, as opponents in a game of euchre, only helped to accentuate the comradeship which leagued them together in defensive alliance.

The days that were so long to others were to them of a bright, surprising shortness. Playing solitaire against each other on either side of the fireplace was a pastime at which hours slipped by. Quite unexpectedly it would be midday, with Cora putting her head round the doorpost and calling them to dinner. In the ebb of the afternoon the darkness crept upon them with the stealthy swiftness of an enemy. It would gather in the corners of the room while Cora was still heated and flushed from her efforts to instruct Willoughby in the intricacies of the game, and yet preserve that respectful attitude which she felt should be assumed in one's relations with a lord.

The twilight hour that followed was to Dominick's mind the most delightful of these days of fleeting enchantment. The curtains were drawn, a new log rolled on the fire, and the lamp lit. Then their fellow prisoners began dropping in—the old judge stowing himself away in one of the horsehair arm-chairs, Willoughby and

"I Don't Agree With You at All, Mr. Buford."

Buford lounging in from the bar, and Mrs. Perley with a basket of the family mending, and the doctor all snowy from his rounds. The audience for Rose's readings had expanded from the original listener to this choice circle of Antelope's elect. The book chosen had been "Great Expectations," and the spell of that greatest tale of a great romancer fell on the snow-bound group and held them entranced and motionless round the friendly hearth.

The young man's eyes passed from face to face, avoiding only that of the reader bent over the lamp-illuminated page. The old judge, sunk comfortably into the depths of his arm-chair, listened, and cracked the joints of his lean, dry fingers. Willoughby, his dogs crouched about his feet, looked into the fire, his attentive gravity broken now and then by a slow smile. Mrs. Perley, after hearing the chapter which describes Mrs. Gargery's methods of bringing up Pip "by hand," attended regularly with the remark that "it was a queer sort of book, but some way or other she liked it." When Cora was forced to leave to attend to her duties in the dining-room, she tore herself away with murmurous reluctance. The doctor slipped in at the third reading and asked Rose if she would lend him the book in the morning "to read up what he had missed." Even Perley's boy, in his worn corduroys, his dirty, chapped hands rubbing his cap against his nose, was wont to sidle noiselessly in and slip into a seat near the door. (To be Continued.)

Dr. C. H. Ellsworth, Dentist, 16 Baldwin St. Rochester, N. Y., says Foley Kidney Pills gave him immediate relief and strengthened him wonderfully. Foley Kidney Pills gave me immediate relief and strengthened me wonderfully. I am pleased to recommend their use." Foley Kidney Pills are specially prepared for kidney and bladder ailments, and are always effective for rheumatism, backache, weak back and lumbago. Badger Drug Co.

The days go by as days have gone since time was first invented, and every breaking of the dawn should find us more contented; for good old Summer's falling fast and soon will be skedaddling down the river to the Past, where other ghosts are paddling. September's coming and the door, September mild and soon again we'll dream our dreams graceful; of smiles to heal the heart that's sore she always has a face full. She brings us sweet and restful days, and nights that soothe a fellow, as she comes down the woodland ways, a-painting red and yellow. She soon will come with silens nose, our FALL IS COMING heat-sick souls enmeshing, to hint of frosts and early snows and other things refreshing. September! When the summer's old, and man is roasted silly, he loves your whisperings of cold, your evenings gray and chilly. Old Summer, with its brazen skies, is falling now and dwindling; soon man may cease to sweat the flies, and lay in coal and kindling. And to the door, September mild and soon again we'll dream our dreams graceful; of smiles to heal the heart before the grate and ember, while

Reno, Nev., Aug. 22.—Andriji Mirkovich is to be shot to death early tomorrow morning at the Nevada State Penitentiary.
